

Tricolor Win From Blue In Last Quarter

Queen's Take League Lead With Eight Point Rally

GILMORE SCORES

Backfield Star Makes 50 Yd. Run—Carter Kicks Well

A last-quarter rally which netted them eight points gave the Queen's Intercollegiate an 11-4 victory over Varsity here on Saturday after the blue visitors had dominated the play for the first 45 minutes. The win put the Tricolor in a commanding position in the 1929 grid race, with two victories and no defeats to their credit.

Varsity's superiority in straight football had given them a 4-3 decision over Howard Carter's stellar backfield until shortly before the close when the Queen's backfield star kicked two rouses to bring the score to 5-4 in favour of the home team. Red Gilmore, snappy new Queen's half-back then clinched the game with a sparkling 50-yard scamper for a touchdown.

Some 9,000 spectators packed the Richardson Stadium to see a game played on a wet though far from soggy field.

Varsity were strong along the line throughout but their aerial attack was at times woefully weak, with first the injured Jack Sinclair, Bill MacFadden and finally Davey taking up the moping duties with equal lack of success.

Blocked kicks played a large part in the first quarter's play which saw Queen's take the lead 3-0 as a result of a safety as against Jack Sinclair's lone rouse.

Carter uncocked another long hold before half time to bring the score to 3-0 but after the interval Varsity took command for a period due to some good ground gaining by the Varsity backs.

Gilmore's effort came shortly before the end when he took Davey's kick at centre field and avoided the whole Varsity team to score a touchdown which we then converted.

Gilmore	Quarter	Davey

Students Visit New Structure

Prof. Turner Explains Interesting Points

On Saturday morning the first and second years of the School of Architecture visited the St. Philip's Church, Montreal West. The party was under the supervision of Mr. Philip Turner, P.R.I.B.A., lecturer at McGill and architect of the building.

Mr. Turner indicated the various points of interest in the construction—what materials were used, and what purposes they fulfilled.

An interesting feature of the building is that the tower is to be used in conjunction with the nave. This has the advantage of allowing more pews than would otherwise be possible. The East and West windows have stone tracery, while the stained glass for the East window is being made by a famous firm of glaziers in England. This firm also produced the windows in the Liverpool Cathedral.

The church itself is of a red sandstone rubble and is designed with a view to economy. The entire work is effectively carried out.

R.V.C.A.A.

A general meeting of the R.V.C. Athletic Association will be held tomorrow at 1 p.m. in the R.V.C. common room. Nominations are in order for assistant managers and these should be handed to the Secretary, Marian Brisbane, before the meeting. It is especially important that all Freshies should attend as Miss Black is going to give a short talk on the Strathcona gym prize.

Club Discussed Race Problems

C. F. Andrews Guest of Newly-Formed Organisation

STRATHCONA HALL

Caucasians Destined to Become Even More Powerful Than at Present

Racial relationships, particularly that of the white race to other races, was the subject which Mr. C. F. Andrews, of India, dealt with at the opening meeting of the newly-formed Saturday Night Club, held in the Secretary's office in Strathcona Hall, Saturday evening. The Club plans to hold a series of such meetings during the season, at each of which some guest will be present who will introduce whatever subject he wishes to discuss, after which the topic will be considered generally by all those present.

According to Mr. Andrews, the race question is one of the most critical problems with which the modern world has to deal. During the last century, the white race will double in the next fifty years, while other races will require 250 years. Thus, numerically, the white race will equal all the other races of the world put together in a comparatively short time.

Continuing, the speaker declared that at present, nearly all the finest agricultural land is in the hands of Europeans, and inhabitants of the two continents of America. Material resources, too, are preponderantly located in lands which are either owned or controlled by whites. The power unit of the white race is also far in advance of those of other races.

All these facts, Mr. Andrews went on to say, are preponderantly in favour of a consideration of what the attitude of the white race was going to be towards other races since it was destined to become even more powerful than it is now. The speaker was sorry to note that whites were becoming more "discourteous" in their treatment of other colors than they have been in the past. Color bars were being raised where before they had not existed.

The fact that the white man considers himself superior to others is leading to difficulties in the field of missionary enterprise. Already Indians are asking the white missionaries how

Players' Club Casting

Try-outs for the first four One Act plays of the Players' Club "Workshop" will take place Tuesday 4-6 p.m. and Wednesday 5-6 p.m. in the Ballroom of Strathcona Hall. All members, especially new ones, wishing to take part, whether in the acting, costume or scenery making departments, or in any other phase of production, should be present at either of these times. Final selections must be made this week as the first two plays are to be presented during the early part of November.

Women Of East Gaining Their Emancipation

S. Garzouzi and C. F. Andrews Address at Forum

WOMAN LAWYER

"The New Woman of the Old East" is Lecture Topic

Last evening's session of the People's Forum held in the Church of the Messiah was devoted to the affairs of women in the Near and the Far East. The first speaker was Mrs. Sayba Garzouzi, a leading lawyer in Cairo and one of the first women to be admitted to the bar at the Sorbonne (Paris). Her subject was "The New Woman of the Old East" with particular regard to the woman of Egypt and Syria. Mrs. Sayba stated that the high education given to the man of the Near East has stimulated the steps of his woman towards learning. She is inspired by self-preservation. Her aim is not independence but the development of family sentiment and national patriotism.

The history of the eastern woman has been divided into three distinct periods. During the first period extending from the Crusades to about 1850 women were simply regarded as men's property and were treated as cattle. In the second, that is, from the middle of the nineteenth century to the outbreak of the Great War she was looked upon more as a human being than an animal yet the only things of importance affecting her were birth, marriage, and death. The majority of women even those of the upper class prior to the War could not read or write Arabic.

At the age of ten the girl was veiled and between the ages of thirteen and sixteen she was usually married. A marriage contracted by a girl past the age of twenty was regarded as an extremely late one and any single woman older than twenty-five was shut up in strict isolation. Society between men and women was forbidden. The men were served first and the remains were given to the women. Since the war the introduction of English and French congregations and American missions have considerably ameliorated conditions. The missions have a great attraction for the girls and they are encouraged by the men desiring educated women as their wives. The first professional woman in the East was the midwife who besides her most important

Club Elects New Members

First Meeting on Twenty-Ninth of October

At the meeting of the McGill Historical Club, held Saturday evening, the following new members were elected: Ronald Smith, Philip Shaw Edmund G. Colford, Max Ford, Martin Estab, Brian I. McGilvray John B. Bolitt, Ewart P. Reid, T. Palmer Howard. New applicants are requested to see C. D. G. Johnson, the secretary-treasurer. Prospective members must have passed their first year college and be taking at least one course in History.

About ten meetings are held during the year at the residences of members and friends, on Tuesday evenings. On each occasion two papers are delivered, one on current events in a country, and the other on the historical developments of the same country. The program will be announced in the next few days.

According to Niall Wail, president, the club expects to hold joint meetings with the House of Commons club and the R.V.C. Historical Society at least once this season. Plans for increasing the capital of the relationship fund will be drawn up as soon as possible.

The Historical Club was organized in 1927, and is the oldest organization on the campus. It has among its members a number of prominent graduates. Sir Arthur Currie is patron, and Professor W. T. Waugh, honorary president.

English Actors Come To McGill

Two Shows Will Run in Coming Week

BERNARD SHAW

Mr. Colbourne Will Appear at University by Special Invitation

Maurice Colbourne, with Barry Jones and his English company will open their week of Shavian repertory in the Moyne Hall tonight with "The Philanderer." This will run for the first half of the week, including the Wednesday matinee. For the last half "Arms and the Man" will be presented.

Mr. Colbourne is appearing at McGill at the special invitation of the University, and particularly that of the Department of English. He was originally booked to play at His Majesty's Theatre, but due to the subsequent change in the local theatrical situation it was found that his engagement could not be carried out there. It was then that the University authorities stepped in and offered the use of Moyne Hall which culminates in this week's presentation.

Last year Mr. Colbourne's company made a highly successful tour of the Dominion, also in Shavian repertory. That Montreal remembers their fine work is shown by the heavy advance sale at Willis' during the past week.

An before, Barry Jones will share leading roles with Mr. Colbourne. Both are noted as leading exponents of Bernard Shaw's works. With regard to Shaw himself there is little more to be said. The following story is amusing and illustrative of the potency of his pen or his prophetic vision: Remedial means have been with indige-

Co-eds To Shoot

Rifle Club Gains Popularity in R.V.C.

Shooting among women at McGill, although a comparatively new sport, has attained such impetus in its short career that the co-eds are for the speedy continuation of the sport.

With this object in view, a meeting of the M.V.B. Rifle Club will be held in the R.V.C. common room tomorrow at 1 p.m. So much interest has been shown in this branch of women's sport that an unprecedented number of newcomers is expected to attend the meeting.

Membership in the club is restricted to forty, a number which just taxes its capacity. The committee expects that all forty places will be filled.

nomies will introduce the subject with a talk on "Industrial Revolution and its Effect." All are cordially invited to attend. The meeting is called for 8.15.

McGill Medical Society Holds First Meeting

Gathering Marks Opening of 1929 Season

HEAR LECTURE

Officers of Society to be Elected During Evening

This evening marks the commencement of the activities of the McGill Medical Society for the season of 1929-1930, for a meeting is to be held in the Assembly Hall of the Medical Building at eight o'clock.

The opening address will be made by Dr. A. H. Gordon, who is Honorary President of the McGill Medical Society and Associate Professor of Medicine at McGill. Those who heard Dr. Gordon's last address will not forget for many years the valuable ideas expounded therein and they will find their time profitably spent if they will glance over "What Shall I Do About It?" (which appeared in "The Canadian Medical Association Journal" last spring) now and then in order to refresh their memories. In that composition, Dr. Gordon set a high standard for his subsequent addresses before the Society, but the subject which he has chosen for to-night, "The Patient as a Person," is an extremely promising one. Since his graduation from McGill, Dr. Gordon has distinguished himself as a fine teacher and as a skilful and understanding physician. His contact with innumerable patients from all walks of life should make him eminently well qualified to interest medical students in a phase of their education which is slighted only too often. In one's mad haste to acquire knowledge of scientific medicine, as one passes from the basic subjects to the courses of the clinical years, one is too apt to forget that his patients are not mere automatons, pieces of chemical or of physical laboratory equipment.

In the course of the evening, there will be the election of an Assistant Secretary, a Chairman of the Medical Dinner Committee, and a Chairman of the Medical Dance Committee. At the close of the meeting refreshments will be served.

The members of the executive have met on several occasions to discuss plans for this year. There are to be about twelve meetings which are to occur at fortnightly intervals. At the present time, Dr. Gordon and President R. H. Cuddey are engaged

Students Must Obtain Tickets

Freshmen and Freshettes Are to Call at Strathcona Hall

All Freshmen and Freshettes who wish to attend the Convivial Fee of charge must call at the Secretary's office in Strathcona Hall either today, tomorrow, or Wednesday, to procure tickets. The Convivial, which is being held under the auspices of the Student Christian Association, will take place Wednesday evening, October 16th, at eight o'clock, in Strathcona Hall.

Students of the first year who are unable to procure tickets must pay the same admission fee as upper-class men and women, fifty cents. On entering the Hall each person will be presented with a card on which he must print his name. In addition, each freshman will receive a program, which he will fill out.

The Social Committee of the S.C.A. of McGill University and the Social Committee of the S.C.A. of R.V.C. are working together, making preparations for the Convivial. A number of Faculty members are to be invited as guests of honor. There will be opportunities for ten conversational periods. Refreshments, consisting of cake, ice cream, and punch, will be served after the seventh period. The Hall will be appropriately decorated for the occasion.

The admission charge to students of the higher years is necessitated by the fact that last year more students crowded into the affair than could be conveniently handled. Many of these were Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, and since the function was intended primarily to provide a means for Freshmen and Freshettes to meet one another, it was felt that steps must be taken to attempt to restore some of its old character to the event.

Brilliant Start Enables Seniors To Score 10-6 Win Over Western Team

McGill Encounters Unexpected Opposition After First Quarter—Doherty's Running and Kritzweiser's Kicking Feature Play—Five Thousand See Western's Intercollegiate Debut Here—Rain Falls Throughout.

A brilliant first quarter attack which gave them a ten point lead enabled the McGill seniors to eke out a 10-6 win over the Western Mustangs at the Molson Stadium on Saturday. Five thousand shivering fans lurking under papers and umbrellas watched an unimpressive but interesting play on the part of the weakened redmen who encountered unexpected opposition from Joe Breen's purple and white twelve.

First Informal Of Season Is Set For Friday

The first informal dance of the season is to be held in the Union Ball Room on Friday evening. Judging from the success which has attended these events in the past it would seem only natural that the present venture should live up to the mark set by its predecessors.

The committee has succeeded in securing the services of Steve Hargreaves and his orchestra and this, together with the refreshments which are being prepared adds a flip to the preparations which will doubtless win over many who were undecided about whether or not to attend.

The committee announced last night that tickets would go on sale in the tuck shop to-day.

Department To Give Courses

Different Subjects Open to Extra-Mural Students

The Extension Department opens its doors this week to extra-mural students, offering a wide range of study subjects in many cases corresponding to those given to regular students.

Registrations will begin at once, the Faculty reserving the right to discontinue any courses which are not sufficiently popular to be a tendency by at least 25 students. The following courses are offered:

In the Department of Classics, Latin is a course intended for six teachers and is identical to the Latin I course of the day classes, that is a general reading of the well-known Authors, Nepos, Caesar, Livy, and Cicero. The lectures will be the members of the Classics Department. Greek is also a teachers' course, being an introduction to the languages. There is also an advanced course in Six Greek Authors: Homer, Plato as a literary artist, Herodotus, Thucydides, Demosthenes. This course will be conducted by Professors Woodhead and Stanley.

Commerce, an ideal course for business men who understand double-entry bookkeeping and have a knowledge of the preparation of Revenue Statements and Balance Sheets, covers the field of Business and Finance Accounting.

In literature the field is widely diversified, there being no less than

Group Meets Today

S.C.A. Study Course for Freshmen Commences

The group for freshmen, on the "Development of Personality," led by Dr. L. C. Douglas, of St. James United Church, will meet for the first time this afternoon, at five o'clock, in Strathcona Hall. This group will function during the college session, and will interest itself mainly in the discussion of problems which confront men in their first year.

A special study course, arranged particularly for freshmen, represents an innovation in the usual study program of the Student Christian Association. It is felt that the leader chosen will be peculiarly fitted to conduct a group of this sort, as a result of his wide experience in dealing with students, first at the University of Michigan, and later in California.

Membership in the group is not restricted to freshmen. Any students of the higher years who have had no experience in study groups will be welcome.

ON LOYALTY

TODAY in our desire for bigness we have left aside the single units. We crave pluralities. Instead of Honour we seek honours. Instead of Liberty we talk liberties. Instead of Fraternity we join fraternities. To the freshmen entering the University there is also the question of Loyalty or loyalties.

In his message in the Handbook, to the Freshman year, Boyd Millen, President of the Students' Council, writes "Never let your loyalty to a club or society come ahead of your devotion to McGill." That is the keynote of the hackneyed phrase, college spirit. At McGill there is no marked evidence of that spirit, which in itself must imply that another loyalty has come to the student. In the plurality of loyalties, the university atmosphere goes.

To a university student then, there must be but one loyalty, his Alma Mater. Within the next week or so numerous freshmen will be asked to make a decision as to the institution which is to receive their loyalty. That institution, primarily involved, which has a large influence in the university life at McGill, is the association of fraternity chapters.

The initiate must swear his full loyalty to his particular chapter, inferring that by bringing honour to his chapter he will bring honour to his university. The message of the President seems most applicable here, for the University is put secondry. Loyalty can be truly sworn only to one institution. In the plurality of loyalties, the essence disappears.

Comparable to our fraternities are the student Corps of Germany. There the initiate swears loyalty to his Corps and by his unflinching stand in sword duels he displays the solemnity of his promise. His loyalty to his Corps is unswerving, so much so that, for a year or so, his intense training and recuperation from facial wounds keep him out of the university. But in the German system of universities, being unlike ours, this can be done. Then, having covered himself with honour in the form of scars, he settles down to his university career with a singleness of purpose. His loyalty is single. While in the Corps it is to his Corps. While in the university it is to his university.

Last spring, addressing a meeting of senior pupils from the High Schools of Montreal, aspirants to the Freshman year at McGill, Professor Carleton Stanley said, "I would advise no one to join a fraternity in your first year, and if you ever contemplate doing so at all, to wait until the third year." Also during last spring, a deputation of four, being representative of students in England, Holland, Germany and Bulgaria, under the auspices of a wellknown international student federation, made an extensive visit of the colleges and universities in the United States, for three or four months. That which impressed them most was the fraternity system which they found there, there being none in their own universities. To which impression they expressed their opinion, "How can they, being university students, agree with them?"

A DEFINITION EXPOUNDED

IF FRESHMAN lectures run true to type the class of 1933 will already have been told that "Literature is the last expression in words of the meaning of life." "The meaning of life?" thinks the freshman vaguely as he makes a hurried note. "What may that be?" and here for the great majority of students speculation on the subject ceases.

But to whatever width the thought may later spread it must always retain its speculative form and never lend itself to concrete exposition. Our philosophers in response to our impatient chiding, explain that they are unable to arrive at a conclusion because their understanding of life is so limited and their study so lacking in thoroughness.

Psychologists come forward saying that they know why men live in certain ways; but the reason for, and the meaning of that living, is as inscrutable a mystery to them as to anyone else.

It seems, then, that the only way in which to gain some slight knowledge of life is to live as fully as possible and to observe modes and manners in all classes and strata of society. This sounds like a vast undertaking, impossible to a man in a man's lifetime. It is; yet the cumulative observations of many generations may, at last, shed some little light upon the subject. Meanwhile, by living fully we shall be doing our infinitesimal yet necessary part in the process of progress.

The university is a small world containing many, if not all, of the types and classes that will be met later in actual life. The Freshman, provided that he exercises due caution against overworking his schedule, can do no better than to take the lesson of his definition of literature to heart and enter fully into life as he finds it here.

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,
The ready response from the President of the McGill Women's Society, to your editorial advocating the wedding of the two present existing bodies of student organization into one unit, is I feel, a gesture that should not pass unnoticed.

There has undoubtedly been some feeling that such a union was both desirable and logical, and last year the joint committee derived from the Students' Council and the M.W.S.S. Executive Council, of which Miss Alexander speaks, discussed the matter tentatively in light of some friction that had arisen between the two bodies. The subject was not pushed at the time, but from present indications it seems to me, Mr. Editor, that the discussing is inevitable sooner or later, and that no useful ends will be served by further postponing it.

From a purely organization standpoint the desirability of the change is incontestable, the case being of one large organization providing an opportunity for full co-operation of every student on the campus, as against that of two organizations effecting matters of common interest on the basis of compromise.

The essential splitting of opinion will occur over the problem as to whether men and women work best and most happily in separate groups. That is a question that more experienced co-operatives must settle.

At the same time, Mr. Editor, may I voice a purely personal opinion that, as far as the men are concerned, the problem does not really exist until the women's organization has arrived at some definite conclusion within itself over the matter. If the M.W.S.S., as a group, decides that it would prefer to sink its separate autonomy for the sake of inclusion in the Students' Society, it is their privilege to make application through the Students' Council either for admission on to the Society on such terms as they may propose, or for a commission to study the question. Until then, it seems to me, vague discussion is pointless.

I would like to add, Mr. Editor, that my own reaction to such a proposal would be favourable.

Yours sincerely,
John S. Smith

McGill Defeats Westmount Men In Close Match

Mollett, Violette, and Fitzgerald Star in Very Even Contest

SCORE 4-1.

In a game that was closer than the score would indicate the McGill Soccer Club defeated an aggregation of picked players representing the Westmount Juniors, last year's champions of the Junior Association. The match was played on the campus immediately after the McGill-Western game, and, although the pitch was rather the worse for wear due to the deluge that prevailed throughout the larger part of the afternoon, both teams played as if the going was of the easiest sort imaginable. As one spectator remarked, the McGill players had improved 100%; every man, without exception, showed the best form seen to-date.

The Westmount players, too, played a good kicking game. Their forwards, it must be admitted, were, in several instances, crowned upon by Lady Luck when well-placed kicks hit the ever-present crossbar. Harkness, McGill's regular right-back, was kept out of the game by an injured rib; Peters, a half-back, filled the position quite nobly in view of the fact that fullback is not his regular position.

The first goal of the game goes to McGil's credit. Shortly after the commencement of the match, McGil, playing at centre-half, lifted a high one in the general direction of the goal. Before the goalie could punch it out, the ball had entered the upper left-hand corner of the goal, thus putting McGill one up. True, the centres had a bit too close to the goal, thus allowing the goalie to reach the ball before the Red forwards can do so; this, however, is a fault that can easily be remedied with a little practice.

Jacks Scores In Second Half.
At half-time the teams changed goals with the score still 1-0 in McGill's favour. During the ensuing twenty minutes the visitors pressed most persistently and succeeded in forcing several corners. From one of these, Fitzgerald was called upon to save in a most business-like fashion. He did his duty nobly. A few minutes later, however, Jacks, the visitors' inside-right, hit the crossbar with a hard shot and scored as the ball shot downwards, hit the McGill goalie on the head and bounced through the goal. This goal tied the two teams with one goal to the credit of each.

At this point McGill took the offensive in the person of Eddie Mollett. Assisted by Martin Estall, Mollett dribbles the visitors' rear guard and scores with a good shot. From the face-off Westmount attacks and presently forces a corner. The shot comes dangerously close to the McGill goal, but Fitzgerald is right there on the job and clears the ball in splendid fashion. Violette traps the ball, passes to Crabtree, and together they dash down the field. As Crabtree is about to be tackled, he returns the ball to Violette and the latter scores, giving the Westmount goalie no chance whatsoever.

Mollett Scores Again.
Although McGill were two goals ahead, it would have been impossible for a newcomer to tell which team was winning. At one moment the ball was uncomfortably near the McGill goal; at the next the Westmount full-backs had their hands full in clearing it from their own goal area. Receiving the ball on one occasion, from Al Watt, Mollett raced a Westmount man for it, gained it, and beat Smith, their goalkeeper, with the nicest shot of the game. A few minutes later Watt, too, had to race for the ball, this time with the aforementioned goalender, Smith. Reaching the ball simultaneously, the inevitable collision took place, with the result that the selfsame Smith lost note of his surroundings for several moments. In returning to the game he exhibited a pluck that is extremely laudable.

Thus ended the game. The final score was 4-1 for old McGill.

INTERFACULTY SOCCER
On Tuesday, at 4.15 sharp, one team from Arts and Commerce combined,

Wrestlers Attention

There will be the usual practice on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays starting to-day in the M.H.S. Gym. A big turnout is looked for.

Commerce Will Play Football

Organization Meeting to be Held Today

Much has been heard of late about the Law Interfaculty football team. They have met in solemn convocation, they have appointed a board of strategy, they have agreed that all their dreaded end runs will go around the right. But all this has left the Commerce entrant in the competition absolutely unmoved.

The debit and credit men are going to hold a meeting at 1 p.m. to-day for the special purpose of organizing a reply to the tactics of their loyal opponents. The reply is expected to take the form of the best team that ever took the field in Interfaculty competition.

Despite the low dodges of the law team in the matter of giving out false information about its end runs, the business men think that they have the ability to smother the lawyers. Commerce is it rumored, may also have one of these boards of strategy. The captain of the team, when elected, will be asked to approach some of the well known professors in the department for the purpose of devising, with their help, an end run which will go through the centre.

The competition in the Commerce-Law-Medicine section of the league will, of course, centre mainly about the clashes between the two former. Medicine is practically inconceivable. With four men told off to sit consistently on Drew and another dozen or two to stop the Medicine line plunges, there should be very little from the boys up the hill.

Anyhow, Commerce is going to do some very business-like organizing at 1 p.m. in the Arts Building smoking room when all men in the department interested in the game will be given an opportunity to put their names down as candidates for places on the team.

RUGGERS WIN 8-3

The McGill English Rugby team scored its first McGill Cup victory of red and white. Fifteen turned in a season on Saturday with an 8-3 win over Vickers on the Campus. The much improved performance in all departments.

SENIOR RUGBY

There will be training table as usual to-night at the Stadium.

will meet a team representing Theology on the Campus. All Theologians—whether Presbyterian, Dominican or Non-Sectarian—are asked to communicate with Mr. Wolf, their faculty representative, who will arrange for their playing positions. Everybody turn out—a game is guaranteed to all.

Any player who has been on the team is asked to see Mr. Walter McBroom, their faculty representative; medical students should see R. Violette.

Arts-Commerce Team

For the Arts-Commerce team, the following men are asked to be on hand: Hankin, Manning, Gammel, Calder, Crabtree, Owen Harkness, Janikun, Watt, Peters, Smart, and two or three others who like to play soccer.

Practices commence to-day. See S. Janikun, Arts-Com. Representative.

Seconds Barely Lose To Loyola Saturday 12-10

Maroons Pile Up Early 12-1 Lead and Then Hold Redmen

COUSENS SCORES

(Special to the Daily)

Loyola Campus, Oct. 12.—The Loyola College football squad barely nosed out the McGill second team 12 to 10 in a regular Intermediate Intercollegiate fixture here this afternoon amid unfavourable conditions, occasional showers of rain and a soggy field. With the score twelve to one at half time in favour of Loyola, the red squad staged a most spirited comeback in the second half, adding nine points to their tally and holding the maroon team scoreless. It was a noble effort and had there been another minute to play the score might have been different, for McGill had the ball on Loyola's fifteen at the final whistle.

Loyola's aggressiveness in the first period was too much for the red team, which was weakened somewhat through injuries and graduation of some of its members to Senior ranks. A fumble by one of the McGill backs in the early stages of the game proved costly, as Start, a Loyola middle fell on the oval behind the line for a touch, which was converted by Haynes. McGill rallied, forcing Loyola to their ten yard line, where Beaubien kicked to centre field, but Greenblatt returned with a beautiful punt to the deadline, chalking up the red squad's first point. Score at first quarter 6 to 1 for Loyola. After changing around the maroon twelve attempted a series of plunges and runs, bringing the ball well into McGill territory. On a kick from Loyola, McGill fumbled on their 10-yard line and Loyola gained possession. The red squad tightened and Loyola only scored a rouge. Fumbles and penalties on the part of Loyola brought the ball into maroon territory. Byrne then made a forty yard run placing the oval in centre field.

A series of kicks were exchanged, and when Greenblatt punted to McAlister, the latter, exhibiting a fine piece of broken field running, raced through both teams for a touch which was not converted. Half-time score, Loyola 12, McGill 1.

After the rest, the McGill squad returned with an aggressiveness that had the Loyola team rattled. With Mathewson, Robertson and Greenblatt bearing the brunt of the attack, the redmen brought the pigskin to Loyola's twenty. Two plays failed to gain and Greenblatt boosted to the deadline for McGill's second point. For a while play centred about midfield with both teams fighting hard. The McGill line however was a little superior. Greenblatt kicking again came to the fore when he hoisted a high one from Loyola's 45-yard line; Byrne, Loyola linemen fumbled; and Cousens, a McGill sub,

Tennis Eliminations

The following men are asked to turn out at this courts this afternoon at 2.30 to start eliminations for the tennis team: Hiltz, Perry, Arnold, Chipman, Saburin, Wilson, Woody, McMartin.

Law And Meds Meet Tomorrow

Forward Pass Will be Interesting Feature of Game

Interfaculty football gets under way tomorrow when the coming lawyers and the would-be doctors have it out on the big campus field. Both teams hold high hopes on the outcome of the game and have plenty of material to choose from. Munger Gardner of the Med team, last year's interfaculty champion expects his team will take full advantage of the forward pass innovation since many have played American football.

If the spirit shown at practices is any indication the Law team should show up well. Coach Boyd Millen will have about enough men for two teams provided Munger Patterson can scrape up enough equipment to outfit them. Then the organized Law cheering is expected to dishearten the rivals to the same extent as it will pen up the home team. Lionel S. H. Shapiro, Gazette Sports Reporter, will referee the game which starts at 3 p.m. sharp.

The Arts team holds its first practice this afternoon at 3. Although there is little left of last year's team owing to graduations the freshman year is counted on to furnish the new material.

fell on the ball for McGill's only touchdown, Greenblatt converted. McAlister made another twenty-five yard run that stopped the McGill advance, but Greenblatt's kicking was superb and the ball was brought to Loyola's 15-yard line, the maroon squad in possession. Beaubien kicked to his 45-yard line. On two downs McGill made nothing and Greenblatt was forced to kick. He hoisted a long, high one to McAlister who was downed by the red wings for a rouge. Ending of the third quarter, Loyola 12; McGill 9.

SECONDS CHOSEN

Candidates Still Needed for Vacancies on Intermediate Squad

Saturday's mail carried to Toronto McGill's entries in the Senior Intercollegiate Track Meet. The list includes twenty-five names, and makes provision for three men in each event. Intercollegiate rules, however, allow only two competitors in each event with a maximum team of thirteen. From this it will be seen that the list below in by no means the final selection.

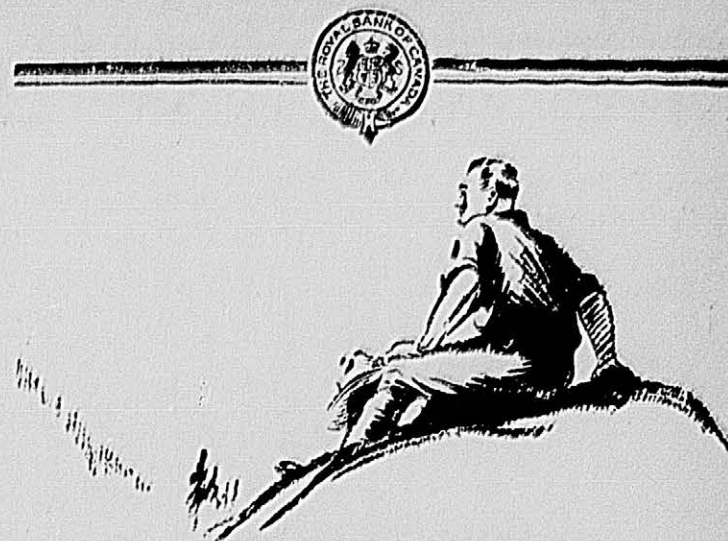

A tentative Intermediate team has also been selected but here, too, there may be many changes before the I.C.C. meet on the 25th. Indeed, several positions on the team are still entirely vacant no candidates yet in the running. This is particularly true in the hurdles where Evelyn is the only candidate. There are still two weeks before the Intermediate meet. Even this short time will enable anyone turning out now to get into some sort of condition.

Several men who made good impressions have stopped coming out. They should come up to the Stadium again at their earliest opportunity. Among those specially noted in this respect are Hamilton, Graeme, Neiland, Mason, Lusher and Powers.

Alexis Nairn Sounds Optimistic Note in Interview

PRACTICE TODAY

With the approach of the time for the game with Meds., great reports come from the legal camp. While Mr. Gammel denies the rumor that he has a special, never-theless elaborate training preparations have been made. The next practice will be held at High Noon on Monday at the lower campus. Co-eds are requested not to clutter the side-lines since school-like, they take the attention of Mr. Glasgow and Mr. White.

Nairn Optimistic
Gordon Alexis Nairn, "The oldest living undergraduate of McGill," is hopeful of a victory for his team. Mr. Nairn has a "hunch" that they will win and offers to bet in their favour to the full limit of his bank account. Mr. Nairn introduces the spiritual element into the matter and declares it only proper that the representatives should conquer.

A Prediction
Mr. Nairn goes as far as to make this positive statement: "Since I know football as well as I know the Civil Code, Femininity, Decorology and Bell-hopping—everything points to an overwhelming victory for Law on Tuesday. As for myself, I will bring into play all the fine points of the game I have learned from my friends Warren Snyder, Harry Batstone, Gus Sonnenburg and 'Bud' Morgan."

A fumble gave the red team the ball, and Greenblatt headed out of danger. After a series of plays the McGill squad managed to work up in Loyola's forty-yard line. The red men were fighting hard and Loyola found the going difficult. Greenblatt kicked another long high one to Loyola's deadline for McGill a touch and last point Johnson. McGill half broke away for an unexpected run to Loyola's fifteen. Things looked great for the red squad, but the whistle blew and ended everything. Final score, Loyola 12, McGill 10.

Loyola are now tied with Bishop's College for first place, each having registered a win over McGill. This headlock will be broken next Wednesday afternoon when the Red and White seconds are at home to Loyola College at the Maitson Stadium. A win for Loyola will place them at the head of the league, while a loss for the red team means complete elimination from the running.

patron, and black-clad arms smashed down their fists with a vengeance when Bernard Shaw's impudence led him to declare that prior to the Boer war, that chocolate was of even greater value to soldiers in the field than ammunition. But official wrath was swallowed when, a few years later, the illustrious Victoria proved that Shaw was right—well nearly!

"Aims and the Man" provoked all the wrath. In it Shaw makes a hero of a hungry little Swiss who gobbles up chocolate crumbs, while the conventional hero, with all his brilliance, falls into the discard. Naturally military officials, even in Great Britain, rather resent the aspersions cast upon the military of the Boers. But when Queen Victoria, having consulted her more practical generals on the matter of an individual gift to her South African troops, sent to every man a box of chocolate, on the cover of which was a portrait of the beloved monarch, it is recorded that Shaw was hailed as a prophet!

It is also history that when the chocolates were consumed every last soldier put the little box in his kit—and carried it for luck until the day that it was buried with his body or, more happily, brought back to be treasured by the sons of gallant men.

lots to worry about, especially after Doherty got away for his long run.

At the beginning of the game the Mustangs were a little too eager in trying to down their men without giving yards and lost heavily in penalties. Kennedy played a great game for the visitors but had an unfortunate tendency to tackle high and earned himself the only penalty of the game. The Hauch brothers, O'Connor and Stull were the pick of the visitors.

five courses offered. The first of these is in composition, the second in the general history of literature, the third in the Shakespearean drama, and the last a half course in American and Canadian literature.

There will be 25 history lectures, bringing out the more important points of Canadian history. Why Canada became bi-lingual and a survey of Anglo-French relations and their resultant wars; now the international boundary was adjusted; a discussion of the United Empire Loyalists; How the Rebellion of 1837 came about; the real meaning and purpose of Confederation.

Metalurgy will give courses in Heat Treatment of Steel and Metallurgy; the first consisting of lectures and laboratory demonstrations which will be given by the Staff and heat treating experts. It is a course especially arranged for the Montreal Chapter of the American Society for Steel Treating. The second is a general course of lectures and laboratory work in the rudiments of metallurgy.

The Physics course consists of a treatment of the modern application of physics to prospecting for ore and oil. It will be conducted in the Macdonald Physics Laboratory, and will be illustrated by lantern slides.

There will also be the Popular Course in Physics of which the details are not yet known.

At the beginning of the twentieth century mention of a franchise for women would have been received with incredulity. What has happened in recent years is that women have taken the lead in reform and progress. They have not been stimulated from outside but have been moved by affliction and suffering. A lady of Beaulieu named Sorgero Nolan founded the movement of Women's Societies. Since her early death brought on by overwork more societies of like nature have sprung up throughout the country.

The education of girls and later marriages are being encouraged. The latter movement has been marked by new legislation. In the course of the last month the marriage age has been raised to fourteen in the Legislative Assembly by a very large majority. This is a happy augury for it has the goodwill of the people behind it.

In conclusion the speaker said, "Women are working out their own salvation. The old traditions of bygone ages are passing and a new era of hope for the women of the East is dawning."

they can expect to interpret the teachings of Christ, when the Indians themselves are in a much better position to understand His teachings. Jesus had said: "Blessed are the meek," but the missionaries represented a race of conquerors.

Mr. Andrews did not encourage intermarriages. He was of the opinion that marriages between extremes were not good.

After the speaker had outlined the subject a general discussion followed.

McGill Medical Society Holds First Meeting

In securing speakers for the various meetings. It is not the desire of the Society to have the students feel that they are attending merely "another lecture." A great effort has been made to have the speakers select subjects which are not discussed adequately in the course of one's medical studies. It is for that reason that the President has requested that the students offer suggestions as to specific topics upon which they would like to hear addresses made.

There will be a meeting of those interested in publicity and advertising for the Club this afternoon at 5 in the "Daily" office.

ONE-ACT PLAYS: Casting for part will take place tomorrow, 4-5 p.m. and Wednesday 5-6 p.m. in the Ballroom of Strathcona Hall.

It is essential that all desiring to take part in these plays in any capacity whatsoever should appear on one of these days. Besides actors, costume designers and makers, scenery and staging men, property men and typists are needed.

The first two plays will be presented during the early part of November so work on them must start immediately.

As stated at the opening meeting, the one-act "Workshop" plays are primarily to give newcomers to the Club preliminary training in their respective fields.

duties, looks after her client's household during the period of confinement. A large number of girls have been encouraged by the foreign missions to take an interest in teaching. However, a dangerous situation has arisen in this profession owing to the fact that girls are often forced to change their religion to teach and thus the moral forces of the country are being distributed by French propaganda. Few women have entered the legal or medical professions although dentistry and commerce are becoming increasingly popular.

As a visible sign of their new freedom the women of the upper class have completely discarded the veil while those of the lower classes now usually wear only the half-veil. The speaker concluded by saying that the woman of the Near East is full of hope and confident that the future will soon see her completely emancipated.

Mme. Garzouli was followed by Mr. C. F. Andrews who has spent nearly thirty years in India, where he is known as "the best-loved Englishman." He spoke on "The Situation of Woman in India." "Not only in Egypt and Syria," said Mr. Andrews, "but also in the great subcontinent of India woman is now coming into her own rights and is doing her own healing work for the benefit of mankind. During the present century there has been a most amazing growth of freedom, education, franchise and all that makes for the higher life among the women of India." In nearly every province of India women enjoy the franchise side by side with the men. They also have the right of being elected to the Legislative Assembly. As a result of the pending constitution arising from the Simon Commission woman's franchise will be universally and permanently guaranteed.

At the beginning of the twentieth century mention of a franchise for women would have been received with incredulity. What has happened in recent years is that women have taken the lead in reform and progress. They have not been stimulated from outside but have been moved by affliction and suffering. A lady of Beaulieu named Sorgero Nolan founded the movement of Women's Societies. Since her early death brought on by overwork more societies of like nature have sprung up throughout the country.

The education of girls and later marriages are being encouraged. The latter movement has been marked by new legislation. In the course of the last month the marriage age has been raised to fourteen in the Legislative Assembly by a very large majority. This is a happy augury for it has the goodwill of the people behind it.

In conclusion the speaker said, "Women are working out their own salvation. The old traditions of bygone ages are passing and a new era of hope for the women of the East is dawning."

they can expect to interpret the teachings of Christ, when the Indians themselves are in a much better position to understand His teachings. Jesus had said: "Blessed are the meek," but the missionaries represented a race of conquerors.

Mr. Andrews did not encourage intermarriages. He was of the opinion that marriages between extremes were not good.

After the speaker had outlined the subject a general discussion followed.

McGill Medical Society Holds First Meeting

In securing speakers for the various meetings. It is not the desire of the Society to have the students feel that they are attending merely "another lecture." A great effort has been made to have the speakers select subjects which are not discussed adequately in the course of one's medical studies. It is for that reason that the President has requested that the students offer suggestions as to specific topics upon which they would like to hear addresses made.
